INTRODUCTION.

I am presenting you this catalog of The First Public Auction of our Beginners' Department with hesitancy for fear a few folks may not understand the purpose of it. We are not starting this work with a selfish standpoint in view. Our object is to place in the hands of every farmer and small breeder, better cattle, and to stand behind them with our usual guarantee, and, that is, that every purchaser must be satisfied. This offering does not consist entirely of the highest-priced cattle on our farm. The ten bulls and a number of the females are of the very best material and good enough to go into the very best herds in our country. The Scotch-topped cows and heifers on the milking strain that we are offering are the big milking kind that we hope and feel sure will please the beginner, the small breeder, and the farmer. They are individuals that no breeder would be ashamed to have in his herd.

The Lookabaugh Shorthorn Cow-calf Club for Boys and Girls Under Seventeen Years of Age Mar. 1, 1918, Competition Open to the World.

We are interested in the boys and girls of our country and are offering them some nice young calves and heifers, the price of which will suit their pocket-books, and if they haven't any pocket-books we will take their individual notes. And yet these calves and heifers are of the kind that will develop into, with a little care, those big 1600-pound cows that anyone would be proud to own. Our object is to help encourage and to establish The Boys' and Girls' Registered Shorthorn Cow-Calf Club to meet each fall at the State Fair in competition for the highest honors and best premiums.

INTRODUCTION (Continued)

We are offering $65 for the first premium; $50 for the second premium; $25 for the third premium; $10 fourth; $10 fifth; $10 sixth; $10 seventh; $10 eighth, making a total of eight premiums. Anybody winning as low as eighth place will win $10, and those winning first, second, or third will win a great deal more besides a large amount of publicity. Of course each boy or girl will be furnished with a ribbon designating the premium won that he may take home to hang up and be proud of. A silver trophy will be given the boy or girl exhibiting the best calf of its age, according to the judge's decision. We are confining this contest to registered female Shorthorns born in 1917 as we want the boys to start with something they can keep. Each calf will be weighed at the time of purchase, or at any time to suit the convenience of boy prior to March 1, 1918. Five points will be taken into consideration at the time of the judging of the calves at the State Fair the last week in September, 1918. First, the amount of pounds that the calf has gained per day from the time it was weighed up until the judging day at the State Fair, 1918, will count fifty per cent; the individuality of the calf will count twenty-five per cent; the condition or mellowness of the flesh of each calf will count fifteen per cent; and the conduct of the boy who shows the calf, ten per cent. An additional premium of $25 will be offered to the boy or girl writing the best story about how he cared for and fed his calf, with an itemized account of quantity and the cost of feed. In case the boy or girl has his own calf, or wishes to purchase a calf from some other person in place of us, all that will be required for him or her to do will be to furnish us with an affidavit from the person who weighed his calf, stating the date and the number of pounds the calf weighed. This will enter him or her in the contest also. Every boy or girl in this contest will be required to furnish next fall before the judging at the State Fair an affidavit, stating that he or she in person fed and cared for the calf. Entries will close in this contest March 1, 1918. That means that we must have in our possession the boys' and girls' names, postoffice address, name and weight of the calf on or before that date. Competition open to the world.

We desire every father or mother and every boy and girl who can, to come to this sale. We will reserve a good seat for you if you are interested.

Very truly yours,

H. C. LOOKABAUGH.

HOW TO FEED SHORTHORNS.

It does not matter whether we are breeding cattle for a selfish or for an unselfish reason. The question that the average person asks himself before making an investment is, "Does it pay?" Now this is the question that is easy to answer. "Try it." If it does not pay, you have a guarantee that will protect you and if it does pay, you have learned something. You have set yourself up in the minds of your fellow-men as an improver and a booster for your country. You have proven to every man who is familiar with the breeding business that you are not interested in yourself alone, but in those around you. You can not help but become enthusiastic over the fact when you find out what the improved blood will do when it comes to producing beef for those who give it a little care and attention. We all realize the time is at hand when the higher-priced land and the scarcity of grass makes it so we must have fewer and better cattle but you feel skeptical as to whether you can take care of them or not. This is the easiest part of the trouble and it is not a hard thing to do if you study the disposition and character of a cow. The average man wants to do too much too quick. The cow brute is an animal that needs a gradual slow change and not a rich concentrated diet but a rough bulky form mixed with a small amount of bran and oats. So that when the animal chews her cud the small amount of grain ration is digested and is easy to assimilate. This makes the animal strong and healthy.

I can't help but think of the experience I first had in feeding some of my grade calves for the spring sale which I sold as breeders. I fed them all corn at the time of the sale in the spring. They were fat and everyone complimented me on how nice they looked. They were sold and scattered out over the different parts of Blaine county and I thought I could always be proud of the fact that they had stayed in Blaine county—but I wasn't. The next summer I had occasion to go to Hitchcock. While there I saw Mr. Loy, who purchased one of those calves. He was on the opposite side of the street but I immediately walked across and shook hands with him and asked how the calf was getting along. He looked up at me a little peculiar and said, "Why Lookabaugh, we got rid of him." I said, "You did?" "Yes," said he. I asked him, "Why, what was the matter?" He said to me, "Well, Lookabaugh, you had him loaded. We turned him out on the corn stalks and he went down to nothing. He looks awfully bad, but he is out only about a mile and a half and if you will get in the buggy I will drive out and show him to you." I accepted the invitation, and we drove out. When he pointed the animal out to me and I looked him over, I made this remark, "Well, that taught me something." Mr. Loy spoke up and said, "Well, it taught me something, too." I asked him what he had learned, and he said, "It taught me that we cannot handle that kind of cattle on this kind of feed." I immediately replied to him, "I have found out, Mr. Loy, that this isn't your fault." He seemed to feel a little warmer toward me and said, "Well, Lookabaugh, we could have fed this calf better but we didn't want a bull that we had to keep up and pamper." And I said to him, "Loy, you shouldn't have had a bull of that kind." But I didn't know it then. I have been watching and studying since then and have put my past experience together and I said, "Mr. Loy, I have come to this conclusion, that we do not want to feed those breeding animals a concentrated grain ration." I told him how I remembered when I was a boy at home of father feeding for the market various bunches of heifer calves and invariably on the farm there would be a runt or two each year that wasn't good enough to feed for the market and still had to have special attention. Father would put him in the feed lot in place of the hospital. The next spring the calf would come out in good shape. But we would not sell it with the big feeding calves but turned it on the grass with the herd and when we brought our herd in from the grass in the fall these calves were not in as good shape as they had been in the spring and they hadn't grown a bit. You know I have been thinking about that and as soon as I saw this bull I thought of the same thing. Then I said, "The idea is here Loy, we expect something that is contrary to nature. Here I have fed this bull pure corn which it only took a small amount of to supply the animal's body and necessarily it had no occasion to stretch or expand or help develop a large stomach in this animal. Consequently when you brought him up here and turned him out on the rough corn stalks the capacity of his stomach was not large enough to gather enough of this weak feed to supply that body and the tissues of his body had to shrink."

I told him I was sorry it had happened but that it had taught me a lesson, and from that day to this I have never committed the same crime again. And if the young feeder or breeder will study this point he will discover how easy it is to make show cattle. The idea is to make your animal eat and drink all it will in order that it may be full each day and stretch and develop the stomach to its greatest capacity. The food that goes into the animal's stomach should be of a rough, bulky form with chopped hay or ensilage mixed with the grain to increase the bulk and lessen the strength of the ration so that when it is digested it is easier to be assimilated.

Now here boys, I will give you a tip on nurse cows. When I first went to use them I found that breeders were rather ashamed that they had to use them. I have never been, but have always been proud of the fact that I had discovered that I could use them. It is not because the mother of the calf doesn't give sufficient milk that the calf has to have a nurse cow but it is because long before the calf is at an age when it should be weaned the mother should be dried up in time to bring another calf. Now why is it that we want to let this calf nurse on until it is eighteen months old? I will tell you why it is with me, because I want to make a good calf. And why does this make a good calf? Because milk is the natural food for a calf and when the calf arrives at the age of nine months he has learned to eat considerable grain and hay and drink no small amount of water. And after he has done all this he will go out and nurse and you will have that much more feed in him of the kind that will not hurt him. In other words he is fuller than any other way you can get him. The manner in which this is given to the calf when you start to chore in the evening is, first a sup of water, then hay, then a bulk grain ration which I have described to you and after all this take him out and let him nurse, then take him direct to the water tank and let him drink all he will. Strange it is, but they will always drink after they have finished nursing. You then have about all in the calf that you can get in him that evening and he is ready to put away for the night with a little hay in one corner of his pen or stall. This is kept up until he is about eighteen months' old and then in place of thinking you have to keep on pampering him, you will find it is just the reverse—that he has developed such a strong constitution and such a strong stomach until he can go any place on the farm and get food that keeps him fat. When they have been rationed like this and developed into cows it seems impossible to get them poor. I know this seems strange to you and it did to me also, but I have found it to be true, nevertheless.

The reason I gave this experience is for the benefit of the boys. The average animal that is not going to the show ring does not require this kind of attention and all that they need is a rough, bulky food, enough to make them full and contented, realizing that the more you give them to eat of whatever this rough product may be, will prove more satisfactory and profitable to you. On pound and a half a day of cotton seed meal put on the ensilage or chopped hay for a brood cow is excellent. It makes them appreciate the straw stack and the water tank. Two things that are a great help toward keeping your cow in good condition. The average bull needs his regular exercise. This is quite as important as the food he eats, which should never be ensilage, just why, I am unable to tell you this time. But the average breeder has come to this conclusion. Chopped alfalfa-hay or some other kind of hay mixed with some bran or oats dampened with a little molasses water makes an excellent feed for your herd bull. A little corn will not hurt anything but I prefer it to be corn cob meal. Every year the bull should have a few months of green pasture with a change in his food ration so as to build up flesh anew each year.

If you want to be sure whether you make a success of this kind of blood with this kind of feed and care, keep books on your purchase and charge them with everything they eat, give them credit for all they produce and at the end of the year see whether you have anything on the farm that has made you as much money. If you have I would be glad to have your experience. But the sum and total of the registered Shorthorn is larger than from any other animal that you can keep in large numbers on your farm.

Watonga Searchlight is a bull that hardly needs any recommendation to the breeders of the Southwest. He is just the same type as his sire, and his dam is one of the best producing cows on our farm. She being out of Lancaster Bud, the Grand Champion female at the World's Fair at Seattle, Washington. He is an exceptionally good sire. The young bull, Pleasant Dale 3d, that sold for $1,250.00 is by him. A number of his get will be in evidence on sale day and you can see for yourself how he transmits that wonderful quality which so distinguishes his family but when you study his pedigree you can hardly expect anything else, as all of his sires, on his sire's side, have been persistent winners in the show ring. He was grand champion at Hutchinson, Kansas, and the Oklahoma State Fair in 1914, of the Texas State Fair at Dallas, in 1915, and of the Colorado State Fair at Pueblo, 1916.
